International Market & Outreach

Where the gamification course sells beyond the Netherlands

The core idea

Going international does not mean cold-emailing thousands of schools. It means reaching the aggregators who already gather teachers and schools from many countries, and letting them fill the room. Three channels, in order of fit:

1. Erasmus+ course providers, they recruit teachers from all over Europe for funded PD; adding a course or joining as a trainer puts Kevin in front of international teachers with the budget already arranged.
2. The Delightex partner ecosystem, Delightex runs a Training Partner and Ambassador programme and is used in 150+ countries; becoming a partner is a direct, on-brand international channel for the game-design course.
3. Innovative-school networks, Ashoka Changemaker Schools, HundrED and international-school associations connect schools that already believe in this.

Channel 1 · Erasmus+ course providers (best first move)

Teachers get 100% funding; providers charge a course fee per participant per week (commonly ~€400-500). The providers constantly need fresh, high-quality courses and trainers. Kevin already delivers Erasmus+ courses, so this is a warm fit.

Targets & contacts (verified where noted):

- Europass Teacher Academy, the biggest (250+ courses, ~12,000 teachers/yr, 36 locations). info@teacheracademy.eu. Note: they certify their own trainers, so pitch as trainer + course. teacheracademy.eu
- Primera, five-star provider, 21st-century-teaching focus.
info@skupinaprimera.si. erasmuspluscourses.com
- Teachersrise (Padova, IT), contact form only; hold until an email is found.
teachersrise.eu
- Erasmus Learning Academy (ELA), Bologna; 2026-27 catalogue across IT/ES/PT/HR/GR; contact form. erasmustrainingcourses.com
- iDevelop, already runs an "AI in Education" course; contact form.
- NOT GEC Academy, relationship ended; do not contact.

Pitch: "A ready-made, proven 2-day course (AI + game design + inclusion), Erasmus+ outcomes mapped. Add it to your catalogue, or take me on as a trainer."

Channel 2 · Delightex partner ecosystem (on-brand, high leverage)

Delightex (formerly CoSpaces Edu) runs Training Partner, Ambassador and Reseller programmes, and is used in 150+ countries. Kevin's "Game Design with Delightex" course makes him a natural partner; being listed feeds him schools that already use the platform.

Contacts (verified): info-edu@delightex.com (general/partnerships), programs-edu@delightex.com (educator programme/certificates). Partnerships page: delightex.com/edu/partnerships .

Pro training & PD: delightex.com/edu/pro-training

Pitch: "I've built a full teacher course around Delightex and train internationally; I'd like to become a Training Partner / Ambassador."

Channel 3 · Innovative-school networks (belief-led)

Schools here already value game-based, learner-led education, so the message lands.

- Ashoka Changemaker Schools, global network of innovative schools; approach via their programme team (contact via ashoka.org).
- HundrED (Finland), spotlights education innovations worldwide; getting the course featured is credibility + reach. hundred.org
- International-school associations, CIS (Council of International Schools), ECIS, COBIS, NABSS (Spain): they run PD and conferences and book external trainers. A conference workshop is a strong shop window.
- English-language innovative schools directly (IB / Cambridge, Green School, Big Picture Learning), selectively, not in bulk.

Positioning for the international market

- English-first, Erasmus-ready. Outcomes mapped; delivery in English (Dutch on request). The product and landing page are already branded international.
- The maker who tours. A working musician who builds from the road, a memorable, genuinely international story.
- Inclusion as the differentiator. Few international PD offers lead with special-needs game-based learning.

Pricing (international, EUR)

Same ladder as the home market: €149 self-paced / €59 mini-course / €199 bundle; live delivery €2,400-3,600 per group; Erasmus+ seat €320-400 per participant. For providers, licence the course to run under their brand (€600-1,500).

First outreach wave (drafted in Gmail, English)

1. Delightex (info-edu@delightex.com), training-partner / ambassador pitch.
2. Europass Teacher Academy (info@teacheracademy.eu), trainer + catalogue.
3. Primera (info@skupinaprimera.si), trainer + catalogue.

Next steps

- Verify emails for Teachersrise, ELA and Ashoka, then extend the wave.
- Apply to the Delightex Ambassador programme directly (form) in parallel.
- Submit the course to HundrED and pitch a workshop to a CIS/ECIS conference.
- Put the English landing page live with a checkout so provider leads can convert.

NOTE

Honest expectation: providers and Delightex are relationship sales, a few good partnerships beat a hundred cold school emails. Lead with the three drafted, then widen as replies come in.
